Zhang Lan had congenital heart surgery this year which cost 100 thousand yuan. In line with the principle of “insurance plus assistance”, the local civil affairs department will provide her with medical assistance.

- 70% will be reimbursed by Medical insurance.
- 100,000’s surgery fee
- 75% of the rest will be reimbursed by medical assistance.
When low-income people and people living on minimum relief fund are applying for medical assistance, their families should file written application to the township (or community) of their domicile place and submit the following materials at the same time:
1. Receipts for out-patient fees and inpatient charge in Beijing’s hospitals and settlement slips issued by relevant authorities responsible for basic medical insurance for urban employees, basic medical insurance for urban residents and new rural cooperative medical care.
2. Diagnosis report issued by contract hospitals of urban basic medical insurances or new rural cooperative medical care.
3. Those having major diseases should provide diagnosis report issued by secondary or tertiary contract hospitals of urban basic medical insurances or new rural cooperative medical care.
4. Women who are pregnant or are about to give birth should provide a copy of their birth permission.
Relevant township governments (or communities) are responsible for reviewing applicants’ certificates of receiving dibao benefits or having low incomes and instructing applicants to fill in the Application Form.
After the relevant township governments (or communities) have reviewed and made sure that the information or materials required are true, they need to input the applicants’ information to the medical assistance system. They also need to write down the amount of relief and confirm their opinion in the Approval Form. Then, they need to submit applicants’ information through medical assistance system to the civil affairs department and submit the paper version in time to civil affairs department for approval.
