| 1000-1100 | Earth in Crisis: Youth and Climate Change Climate change is disproportionately touching the people least able to cope with its consequences. Rising sea levels, food insecurity, water scarcity, malaria and other diseases are most prevalent among the world's poorest people. How can we collaborate and support youth to promote technologies and policies that advance sustainable development? Moderator: Jessy Tolkan, Executive Director, Energy Action Phil Aroneanu, Co-founder, 350.org Khairunnisa Ash'ari, Co-founder / Community Engagement Director, Green Brunei Hour Chhunkry, Deputy Secretary General of National Youth Development Council and Deputy Inspector General of Ministry of Education, Youth and Sport, Cambodia Lydia Avila, Executive Director, Energy Action Coalition |
| 1100-1130 | Coffee/Tea Break – Front Lobby |
| 1130-1230 | Youth and Health, Choices and Risks Young people are healthier than ever before. Various health issues affecting young people today are linked either to behavior or an unprotected environment, from HIV/AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases, Malaria and Ebola. Too many young people aren't aware of specific health risks and how and where they can access appropriate health information and services. How can we increase efforts of health awareness among youth, get the care they need and how can we help them to make healthy decisions? Moderator: Rafael Cortez, Senior Economist Health, World Bank Group George Patton, Director, Adolescent Health Research, University of Melbourne and Lancet Adolescent Health Commission Aliou Oumarou, President National Council of Youth, Niger Sameera Al Tuwajri, Lead Health Specialist, World Bank Group |

| 1330-1430 | Update on the Global Partnership for Youth in Development (GPYD) and open discussion on the role of the partnership Can we shape the future of the Global Partnership for Youth in Development? To achieve our global goals we must advocate for more evidence-based policies and for a greater role for young people in development; build the evidence base, understanding what works and what doesn't; connect learning and action across themes and sectors, for scale, sustainability, external validity and broader relevance; develop a network among partners for coordination of learning, program design and implementation; and experiment and innovate to develop effective new programs. In this session, we will begin developing a roadmap for the partnership. Moderator: Mattias Lundberg, Lead Global Partnership for Youth in Development, World Bank Group Roby Senderowitsch, Manager Country Clients, Leadership Learning and Innovation, World Bank Group Mike McCabe, Youth Coordinator US Agency for International Development Nader Kabbani, Chief Program Officer, Silatech Gimena de León, Research Associate, CIPPEC |
| 1430-1600 | Global Café I - Discussions led by implementing partners and young social entrepreneurs The Global Café will bring young global change agents, luminaries, humanitarian innovators and tech-savours together to engage, inspire and empower youth. The Global café will cover topics ranging from education, health, employment, climate change, migration, technology, voice and governance, peace and violence. |
| 1600-1700 | Unlocking Youth Employment and Entrepreneurship The pace of job creation is inadequate to absorb millions of unemployed and underemployed youth, and some 800 million more young people will enter the labor market by 2030. What support do firms require to expand job creation? What skills and services do young men and women need to obtain productive work? How will they adapt to the changing demands? Moderator: Nicole Goldin, Lead Economist and Policy Advisor, World Bank Group Héry Coulibaly, Coordinator of the Project of Professional Formation, Inclusion and Support to the Entrepreneurship of Rural Youth, Republic of Mali Jacob Korenblum, President & CEO, Souktel Kalsoom Lakhani, Founder & CEO, Invest2Innovate Angelica Towne, Country Director, Educate! |
| 1700-1900 | Opening Reception |

| Day 2 – Tuesday, June 14 B2 Auditorium, IFC Building | |

| 0900-0930 | Opening of Day 2 Sheila Redzepi, Vice President External and Corporate Relations, World Bank Group Amirali Batada, Co-founder Global Partnership for Youth in Development, World Bank Group |
| 0930-1030 | Education for the 21st Century Education, as means to acquire the skills for employment and transition to work, is not easy to navigate for today's youth, educators, and policymakers alike. Many young people begin working while still in school or drop out entirely for a variety of cultural, socio-economic, and personal reasons. How can policymakers, the global community, and today's youth themselves create solutions in education for the 21st Century? Moderator: Clare Ignatowski, Consultant (Former Senior Advisor, USAID and Director, Millennium Challenge Corporation) Audrey Cheng, CEO & Co-founder, Moringa School Mostafa Farahat, General Manager, Nafham Harry Patrinos, Practice Manager Education Global Practice, World Bank Group |
| 1030-1100 | Keynote Address I: Jo Boyden, Oxford University, Young Lives Project Introduced by Deon Filmer, Lead Economist Development Economics (DECHD), World Bank Group |
| 1100-1130 | Coffee/Tea Break |
| 1130-1230 | Digital Novices and Natives: Connecting to the Future Young people are on the forefront of technological developments, and use technology to develop capacity, strengthen community, and find or create jobs. Yet, not all young people have had adequate education and training. Information technologies can also drive political changes. What is needed to broaden access to the economic and social returns to technological developments for all young citizens? Moderator: Amirali Batada, Co-founder Global Partnership for Youth in Development, World Bank Group Numon Abdughafforzoda, Head Secretariat of the Consultative Council on Improvement of Investment Climate under the President of the Republic of Tajikistan Jackie Chang, Global Partnerships for Free Basics, Facebook/Internet.org Nick Martin, CEO, TechChange Marwa Moaz, Managing Director, Bamyam Media Siyanda Mohutsiwa, Writer and TED Speaker |
| 1230-1330 | Lunch – B2 Auditorium |
| 1330-1400 | Keynote Address II: Mr. Ian Scott, Oxford University Mattias Lundberg, Lead Global Partnership for Youth in Development, World Bank Group |

| 1400-1500 | Empowerment: The Challenges Facing Young Women Empowerment – increasing the autonomy and self-determination of people so that they can represent their interests in a responsible and self-determined way and acting on their own authority – is a key element in the youth transition to adulthood. For women and girls, it is often held back by behavioral norms, customs and attitudes which constrain development of female agency, as well practical aspects of the environment such as lack of safety for women and girls in public areas. While the gendered structure of constraints is context specific, it is now widely recognized that adolescent females in the developing world need their own programs to develop the skills and attitudes to challenge the norms and overcome these constraints. How can female empowerment be fostered? When should this process start? Moderator: Carolina Romero, Social Protection Research Analyst, World Bank Group Chaabane Ep Jabeur Faouzia, General Director, Ministry of Women, Family and Children, Tunisia Louise Fox, Professor of Development Policy, University of California, Berkeley Fatmata Kabia, Co-founder, Memunatu Magazine Silvia Paruzzolo, Deputy Director Global Initiative on Child Poverty, Save the Children US |
| 1500-1630 | Global Café II - Discussions led by implementing partners and young social entrepreneurs The Global Café will bring young global change agents, luminaries, humanitarian innovators and tech-savoirs together to engage, inspire and empower youth. The Global café will cover topics ranging from education, health, employment, climate change, migration, technology, voice and governance, peace and violence. |
| 1630-1700 | Growing Up LGBT Violence, economic hardship, stigma and political marginalization negatively impact the lives of LGBT individuals and communities around the world. The promotion of LGBT-equality efforts, through the integration of rights, inclusion, recognition and empowerment in policies and programming, is gaining attention and shifting towards actionable response. Though progress is being achieved, challenges still persist for the LGBT youth community. What concrete measures could be deployed to overcome these obstacles and enable a pathway towards inclusive societies? Jordan Long, Associate Director, Human Rights Campaign Global Samantha Master, African American Leadership and Engagement Poornima Sukumar, Founder, Aravani Art Project |
| 1730-2000 | Networking Facetime |

| Day 3 – Wednesday, June 15 B2 Auditorium, IFC Building | |
|---|--|
| 0800-0900 | Breakfast in Front Lobby |
| 0900-0930 | Opening of Day 3 Bill Maloney, Chief Economist, Equitable Growth, Finance and Institutions, World Bank Group Mattias Lundberg, Lead Global Partnership for Youth in Development, World Bank Group |
| 0930-1000 | Keynote Address III: Dr. Leana Wen, Public Health Commissioner, Baltimore City Introduced by Olusoji Adeyi, Director Health, Nutrition and Population, World Bank Group |
| 1000-1100 | On the Move: Youth and Migration In 2015, the world experienced the highest international migration rates ever recorded. Of the roughly 250 million international migrants, as many as 35 million were youth. Migration can be a major obstacle for migrants and difficult for sending and receiving regions. How can we facilitate the movement of youth to increase productive and peaceful integration while encouraging productive links from diasporas to countries of origin? Moderator: Rebekah Lee Smith, Consultant, World Bank Group Michael Boampong, Founder, Young People We Care Sayre Nyce, Executive Director, Talent Beyond Boundaries Monica Fuentes, Director, Welcoming America Nicole Goldin, Lead Economist and Policy Advisor, World Bank Group Alejandro Quinteros, Adviser of the Minister of Social Development, Guatemala |
| 1100-1130 | Coffee/Tea Break |
| 1130-1230 | Stand Up and be Heard: The New Social Contract Young people are crucial to the successful delivery of the goals by 2030. As the 2030 Agenda states, young people are “agents of change” - the leaders of today, not tomorrow. What impact will the voices and actions of youth have on the direction of global development over the next 15 years? What will youth perspectives, experiences and civic engagement look like in 2030? And what role will today’s young people play in achieving these goals? Moderator: Rosanne White, Head of Policy and Practice, Restless Development Omolola Adele-Oso, Director, Children & Youth Programs, Act4Accountability Mubeen ul Islam, Founder, Civic Pakistan Pedro Robledo, Undersecretary of Youth, Ministry of Social Development, Argentina |
| 1230-1330 | Lunch – B2 Auditorium |
| 1330-1400 | Keynote Address IV: Ahmad Alhendawi, United Nations Special Envoy for Youth Introduced by Edward Olowo-Okere, Senior Advisor, Equitable Growth, Finance and Institutions, World Bank Group |

|------------------|---|
| 1400-1500 | The Peacebuilders: Youth, Peace, and Security When the social contract breaks down, young people are among the first to speak up and the first to become victims. Yet they also predominate as perpetrators of violence, whether criminal or political. But even in the depths of conflict and chaos, only a minority of people resort to violence. Most are merely trying to survive, and some are trying bravely to build peace. How can we best support the peacemakers? Moderator: Saji Prelis, Director, Children & Youth Programs, Search for Common Ground Gloria La Cava, Senior Social Scientist, World Bank Group Saba Ismail, Executive Director, Aware Girls Achaleke Christian Leke, National Coordinator, Local Youth Corner Cameroon Noëlla Richard, Youth Policy Specialist, UNDP |
| 1500-1530 | Coffee/Tea Break |
| 1530-1630 | Where do we go from here? A conversation to explore next steps Where do we go from here and what are the take-aways of the forum for young people, communities, governments, private sector, the World Bank Group, the development community and donors? All of these topics are inextricably intertwined and complex, in an increasingly insecure and unpredictable world. What actions must we take now? Moderator: Roby Senderowitsch, Manager Country Clients, Leadership Learning and Innovation, World Bank Group Shanta Devarajan, Chief Economist of the Middle East and North Africa Region, World Bank Group Maninder Gill, Director Social, Urban, Rural and Resilience Global Practice, World Bank Group Fiona Macaulay, CEO and Founder, Making Cents International Raphael Obonyo, Co-founder, Youth Congress of Kenya Melanie Robinson, UK Executive Director, World Bank Group |
| 1630-1700 | Closing remarks Michał Rutkowski, Director External and Corporate Relations, World Bank Group |
| 1700-1900 | Thank You Reception |
