Dear Mr. Minister:

I refer to my letter to you dated October 17, 1978 inviting you to send a Deputy to the initial meeting on the Sixth Replenishment of IDA Resources, which will be convened in Paris on December 11-12, 1978. My purpose in writing this letter is to urge that Spain take as forthcoming an attitude as possible at this meeting, and during the subsequent negotiations, with respect to the overall magnitude of the replenishment and the amount of Spain's contribution.

As you will well know from your experience in attending the Bank's Annual Meeting in Washington in September, there is an increasingly widespread recognition, stimulated in part by the Bank's recent World Development Report, that the plight of the poorer developing countries makes pressing calls upon all of us in a position to do so to augment both the amount and the effectiveness of external assistance to these countries. The World Bank Group, because of its central position in the family of international development institutions, feels a sense of great responsibility in this matter. We are therefore bending every effort toward mobilizing more concessional funds for assistance to the poorer developing countries, and toward making further improvements in the administration of the funds provided to us. In particular, we are reorienting our activities toward a direct attack upon the appalling conditions of poverty that exist in these poorer developing countries.

IDA (the International Development Association) will play a key role in this program since the great bulk of its assistance is rendered to countries whose per capita income still remains below $300 a year. Hence, there is nothing to which I attach higher priority than the successful conclusion of the international negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of IDA Resources.

One of the objectives that we hope to achieve during the negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment is to secure the participation of a number of additional countries, including not only some of the OPEC nations that have not so far participated, but also a number of the other more advanced developing countries which might have a capacity to contribute in amounts related to their resources and capabilities. It is clear to me that such a broadening of the base of the replenishment would give an important stimulus to the principal donor countries to the IDA fund, who would find their own position with their Parliaments and Congresses greatly strengthened by the participation of an ever widening group of nations in the IDA Replenishment.

In discussing the IDA Replenishment with prospective new donors among the more advanced developing countries we have found it very helpful to point to the example of countries such as Spain, Yugoslavia and Korea who have already evidenced their willingness to lend support to the poorer developing countries by their participation in earlier IDA Replenishments. I should therefore like to thank you once more for the role that Spain has already played in supporting IDA's program. A fresh opportunity for Spanish leadership now arises in the negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment, where the size of the Spanish contribution could have a catalytic effect in stimulating action by new donors in the group of advanced developing nations.

In this connection I would greatly appreciate it if you would be able to receive in Madrid Mr. J. Burke Knapp, formerly our Senior Vice President and now assisting me in the IDA discussions. Mr. Martin-Fernandez, who as you know is returning to Madrid shortly, will seek to arrange a date with you for this appointment and I greatly look forward to receiving his report on your discussions.

With best regards,

Sincerely,

(Signed) Robert S. McNamara

Dear Mr. Minister:

I am addressing you in your capacity as Governor for Greece in the World Bank Group and I should like to say, first of all, how much we missed having you at our Annual Meeting in September. Greece was most ably represented at the Meeting, however, by Governor Zolotas and by Mr. Stavros Dimas, Under-Secretary in your Ministry, and this provided the opportunity for some preliminary conversations with them on the subject of this letter, namely, that Greece might see fit to participate in the next replenishment of IDA (the International Development Association), the institution in the World Bank Group that caters particularly to the needs of the poorer developing countries.

As I am sure that Governor Zolotas and Mr. Dimas will have reported to you, there was a very widespread recognition at the meeting, stimulated in part by the Bank’s recent World Development Report, that the plight of the poorer developing countries makes pressing calls upon all of us in a position to do so to augment both the amount and the effectiveness of external assistance to these countries. The World Bank Group, because of its central position in the family of international development institutions, feels a sense of great responsibility in this matter. We are therefore bending every effort toward mobilizing more concessional funds for assistance to the poorer developing countries, and toward making further improvements in the administration of the funds provided to us. In particular, we are reorienting our activities toward a direct attack upon the appalling conditions of poverty that exist in these poorer developing countries.

IDA will play a key role in this program since the great bulk of its assistance is rendered to countries whose per capita income still remains below $300 a year. Hence, there is nothing to which I attach higher priority than the successful conclusion of the international negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of IDA Resources, which will commence with an initial meeting in Paris on December 11-12, 1978.

Twenty-six countries participated in the last (fifth) IDA Replenishment, and I am inviting the Governors of IDA for each of those countries to send a Deputy to the Paris meeting. This list of contributors includes some of the more advanced developing countries such as Spain, Yugoslavia and Korea and this seems to me an appropriate occasion to try to enlist the participation of a number of other countries which might have a capacity to contribute in amounts related to their resources and capabilities. Indeed, I very much hope that Greece will take its place among these countries and I am most grateful to you for agreeing to receive Mr. Knapp, our former Senior Vice President who is now assisting me in this matter, to discuss the possibility of a Greek participation.

As you may know, IDA will have committed all of its present resources and will require new commitment authority by June 30, 1980. In order to allow time for the process of ratification by national Parliaments and Congresses we feel that we must reach a firm inter-governmental agreement on the amount, terms and conditions of the Sixth Replenishment by the summer of 1979 or at the latest by the time of our next Annual Meeting. The Paris meeting will be the first of a series of meetings designed to achieve this result.

I am leaving it to Mr. Knapp to explain to you the manner in which Greece might join in the Paris meeting and the subsequent negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment. In the meantime, I would urge you, in the spirit of mutual collaboration which inspires the World Bank Group, to give favorable consideration to Greece's participation. I am confident that this would be very warmly welcomed by the international community, first of all by the poorer developing countries that will be the ultimate beneficiaries of the Sixth IDA Replenishment, and secondly, by the principal donor countries to the IDA fund who will find their own position with their Parliaments and Congresses greatly strengthened by the participation of an increasing number of the more advanced developing nations in the IDA Replenishment.

Dear Mr. Minister:

As you will well know from your experience in chairing the Bank's Annual Meeting in Washington in September, there is an increasingly widespread recognition, stimulated in part by the Bank's recent World Development Report, that the plight of the poorer developing countries makes pressing calls upon all of us in a position to do so to augment both the amount and the effectiveness of external assistance to these countries. This list of contributors includes some of the more advanced developing countries such as Spain, Yugoslavia and Korea and this seems to me an appropriate occasion to try to enlist the participation of a number of other countries which might have a capacity to contribute in amounts related to their resources and capabilities. To my mind Malaysia is one of those countries and I understand that this matter was broached with you by Mr. Shahid Husain in discussions that you had with him during the Annual Meeting.
As you know, IDA will have committed all of its present resources and will require new commitment authority by June 30, 1980. In order to allow time for the process of ratification by national Parliaments and Congresses we feel that we must reach a firm inter-governmental agreement on the amount, terms and conditions of the Sixth Replenishment by the summer of 1979 or at the latest by the time of our next Annual Meeting. The Paris meeting will be the first of a series of meetings designed to achieve this result.

I am sending you herewith the agenda and other relevant papers for consideration at the Paris meeting in the hope that you will designate a Deputy to represent you there, thereby indicating that you have decided in principle to make a meaningful contribution. If, on the other hand, you are not ready to cross this bridge yet, but feel a positive interest in pursuing the subject and discussing the matter with us, I would suggest that you consider sending an observer to the Paris meeting. At a later stage I would hope to have a senior officer of the Bank visit you in Kuala Lumpur to discuss your participation in the Sixth Replenishment.

In the meantime, I would urge you, in the spirit of mutual collaboration which inspires the World Bank Group, to participate in some form in the Paris meeting. I am confident that this would be very warmly welcomed by the international community, first of all by the poorer developing countries that will be the ultimate beneficiaries of the Sixth IDA Replenishment, and secondly, by the principal donor countries to the IDA fund who will find their own position with their Parliaments and Congresses greatly strengthened by the participation of an increasing number of the more advanced developing nations in the IDA Replenishment.

Dear Marvin:

It was very thoughtful of you to send me a copy of the letter which you addressed to the Moroccan Prime Minister in October 1977. I have read with interest your specific suggestions which, in several instances, correspond to the line that we have been pursuing in our discussions with the Moroccan Government and in some of the projects financed by the Bank. Expert advice such as yours is very valuable indeed in support of our own efforts to induce our poorer member countries to devise development models of their own rather than to copy those of the industrialized world. Many thanks for sharing your thoughts with me.

With warmest regards,

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

I should like to use the occasion of this letter to revert to a subject that I have mentioned to you before, most recently during your visit to Washington a year ago, namely, the question of Singapore joining IDA (the International Development Association) and participating in the periodic replenishment of the IDA fund.

As you well know, there is an increasingly widespread recognition, stimulated in part by the Bank's recent World Development Report, that the plight of the poorer developing countries makes pressing calls upon all of us in a position to do so to augment both the amount and the effectiveness of external assistance to these countries. The World Bank Group, because of its central position in the family of international development institutions, feels a sense of great responsibility in this matter. I very much hope that Singapore will become one of those countries.
As things now stand, IDA will have committed all of its present resources and will require new commitment authority by June 30, 1980. In order to allow time for the process of ratification by national Parliaments and Congresses we feel that we must reach a firm inter-governmental agreement on the amount, terms and conditions of the Sixth Replenishment by the summer of 1979 or at the latest by the time of our next Annual Meeting. The Paris meeting will be the first of a series of meetings designed to achieve this result.

I am sending you herewith the agenda and other relevant papers for consideration at the Paris meeting in the hope that the Hon. Hui Sen, in his capacity as the Governor of the Bank for Singapore, will designate a Deputy to represent him there, thereby indicating that Singapore has decided in principle to join IDA and to make a meaningful contribution to the next replenishment. If, on the other hand, you are not ready to cross this bridge yet, but feel a positive interest in pursuing the subject and discussing the matter with us, I would suggest that you consider sending an observer to the Paris meeting. Dear Mr. Minister:

I was greatly pleased and encouraged to hear through Mr. Pesqueira of the decision of your Government to participate in the next replenishment of the resources of IDA (the International Development Association), and to designate a Deputy to represent you at the first meeting of the Deputies on the Sixth IDA Replenishment that will be convened in Paris on December 11-12, 1978. Please regard this letter as our official invitation to Mexico to attend this meeting; the agenda and other relevant papers for consideration at the meeting are attached.

As you will well know from your participation in the Bank's Annual Meeting in Washington in September, there is an increasingly widespread recognition, stimulated in part by the Bank's recent World Development Report, that the plight of the poorer developing countries makes pressing calls upon all of us to augment both the amount and the effectiveness of external assistance to these countries. Hence, there is nothing to which I attach higher priority than the successful conclusion of the international negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of IDA Resources.

So far as the Mexican action is concerned, I understand that Mr. Knapp has already expressed to you his conviction that it will be very warmly welcomed by the international community, first of all by the developing countries that will be the ultimate beneficiaries of your generosity, and secondly by the principal donor countries to the IDA fund, who will find their own position with their Parliaments and Congresses greatly strengthened by the participation of Mexico and other leading developing nations in the IDA Replenishment. I very much agree with this assessment; furthermore, I am sure that your action will be most helpful to us by encouraging other middle-income developing countries to join in our IDA program for assisting the poorest countries through collective international action.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Minister:

I was delighted to learn from Mr. Knapp that you would be receiving him in Tehran on November 9, for a discussion of the possible participation by Iran in the Sixth Replenishment of IDA.

As you will well know from your participation in the Bank's Annual Meeting in Washington in September, there is an increasingly widespread recognition, stimulated in part by the Bank's recent World Development Report, that the plight of the poorer developing countries makes pressing calls upon all of us to augment both the amount and the effectiveness of external assistance to these countries. I should like to thank you again for receiving Mr. Knapp in Tehran for a thorough discussion of this subject and I greatly look forward to receiving his report upon his return to Washington.

Dear Mr. Minister:

As you will remember in my address to the Board of Governors during the last Annual Meeting of the Bank, I pointed out that the most shocking conclusion of the World Development Report is that even if growth rates projected for the developing countries were to be achieved by 1985 — which is by no means certain — and even if that growth were to continue for another 15 years, it seems likely that at the end of the century there would remain some 600 million individuals trapped in absolute poverty.

I am sure that you will agree that this is intolerable. We in the Bank, however, believe that as gigantic in dimensions as this tragic problem may be, it is manageable. But we cannot even start to hope to solve it except by intensifying our efforts both to understand internal dynamics of poverty more clearly, and to design practical anti-poverty strategies that will work.

The only feasible effective way of reducing poverty is to assist the poor to become more productive. Each developing society must formulate specific anti-poverty objectives at national, regional, and local levels; prepare operational programs to attain those objectives over a reasonable time; and determine the level of resources required to meet the minimum goals.

The experience of the World Bank itself over the past five years demonstrates that all of this can work. The progress of our new projects in both the countryside and the cities, designed to enhance the productivity of the poor, is extremely encouraging.

But the Bank’s capacity to broaden those particular efforts, as well as to further its overall program of development assistance — and it is now the largest single source of that assistance in the world — will depend on the prompt resolution of two paramount issues.
One is the decision to move ahead with the IBRD's General Capital Increase. The other is the Sixth Replenishment of IDA's resources. And it is with regard to this latter, crucially important subject that I am writing to you.

As you know, the need for IDA became apparent by the late nineteen fifties when it was realized that the Bank's assistance in helping the economic development process in member countries could not be adequately extended to those members who need assistance more, i.e., the poorer countries. They could not afford to borrow from the Bank on Bank terms. To enable these very poor countries to borrow on soft terms (repayment over a 50-year period with no repayment in the first 10 years and at no interest, but only a service charge of 3/4 of 1%), IDA was established in 1961. In order to be able to lend at these concessionary terms and to continue to do so, IDA relies on periodic replenishments of its resources by donor governments. The First Replenishment was in 1964, the Second in 1968, the Third in 1971, the Fourth in 1974, and the Fifth in 1977.

IDA is now the biggest and most significant single source of economic aid to the poorest countries. Up to the end of the last fiscal year (June 30, 1978), it has extended credits totalling about $14 billion to assist in financing some 860 high-priority projects in 70 countries. The total investments in these projects amount to more than $25 billion. About 10% of these credits were allocated to countries members of the Arab League.

To ensure continuity of IDA commitments after the Fifth Replenishment period, it is essential that negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment be completed before the Bank's next Annual Meeting in October 1979. In order to meet this schedule, negotiations need to be started before the end of this year. The reason for this is that although the funds provided in the Fifth Replenishment will not be fully committed until June 1980 — the long lead time required to reach a negotiated agreement, and to secure legislative approval, makes it essential that the negotiating process begin soon. It is therefore proposed to hold the first meeting of IDA Deputies at the Bank's Paris office on December 11 and 12 of this year. For this purpose, I am writing to ask if you would kindly appoint a Deputy to represent your Government in the IDA 6 Replenishment discussions and to attend the first meeting in Paris.

I am sending a similar request to all the countries that contributed to the Fifth Replenishment. Furthermore, in order to make our best efforts to widen the circle of contributors, my senior associates and I have started to approach possible new contributors. I sincerely hope that Libya would be able to play a leading role among the new contributors to this vital endeavor.
I have asked Mr. Cargill, the Bank's Senior Vice President, Finance, to take the principal responsibility for the negotiations of the Sixth Replenishment on behalf of IDA. I have also asked Mr. Burke Knapp, the Bank's former Senior Vice President, Operations, to call on you in Tripoli before the first meeting of the Deputies and he will be in touch with you for this purpose.

Sincerely,

(Signed) Robert S. McNamara

Dear Mr. Minister:

You will recall that during our recent meeting in Washington, one of the important subjects we discussed was the need to start negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of the International Development Association (IDA) before the end of this year. The reason for this timing is that — although the funds provided in the Fifth Replenishment will not be fully committed until June 1980 — the long lead time required to reach a negotiated agreement, and to secure legislative approval, makes it essential that the negotiating process begin soon. It is therefore proposed to hold the first meeting of IDA Deputies at the Bank's Paris office on December 11 and 12 of this year. For this purpose, I am writing to ask if you would kindly appoint a Deputy to represent your Government in the IDA 6 Replenishment discussions and to attend the first meeting in Paris.

As I mentioned in my concluding remarks during the latest Annual Meetings, it has become clear from the deliberations of the Governors that a broad consensus has emerged on a number of fundamental issues. There has been widespread acceptance of the twin goals of development — the acceleration of economic growth, and the attack on absolute poverty — and general agreement that they should serve as the foundation both for the operational plans of the developing countries themselves and for the efforts of those, including the Bank, who are seeking to assist them.

Similarly, there has been general agreement on the fact that the negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of IDA should have the objective of achieving a substantial increase in IDA’s resources in real terms.

It is an internationally well recognized fact that the United Arab Emirates is fully aware and cognizant of the vital importance and indispensability of mutual cooperation and interdependence between nations. Its record in the field of economic development aid, based on the ratio between the aid it generously gives and its gross national product, puts it in the forefront of the donor countries.
As you know, IDA is the biggest and most significant single source of economic aid to the poorest countries. Up to the end of the last fiscal year (June 30, 1978), it has extended credits totalling about $14 billion to assist in financing 360 high-priority projects in 70 countries. The total investments in these projects amount to more than $25 billion. About 10% of these credits were allocated to countries members of the Arab League.

Of course, I do not need to emphasize to you the crucial importance of this issue and I am confident that the United Arab Emirates will continue to play its traditional enlightened role in the forthcoming negotiations.

Sincerely,

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. S

Our present IDA commitment program for the Fifth Replenishment period amounts to: FY78 - $2313 million, FY79 - $2829 million, and FY80 - $3052 million. If, as now seems likely, the value of the Fifth Replenishment will be $38700 million, plus a transfer of $300 million from IBRD income, how would you propose to schedule the commitment of the additional $800 million?

Dear Governor:

At the recent Annual Meeting in Washington, I mentioned that we wish to start negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of the International Development Association (IDA) before the end of the year. This is because IDA will have fully used its existing commitment authority under the Fifth Replenishment by the end of June 1980. Before then not only is there a need to reach an executive agreement on the next replenishment but also time has to be allowed for legislative ratification among governments. It is therefore proposed to hold the first meeting of IDA Deputies at our Paris Office on December 11 and 12 of this year. For this purpose, I am writing to ask if you would be good enough to appoint a Deputy to represent your Government in the IDA 6 Replenishment discussions and to attend the first meeting in Paris. I am sending a similar request to all countries that contributed to the Fifth Replenishment. At the same time, my senior associates and I have started to approach possible new donors to IDA in order to make our best efforts to widen the circle of contributors.

During the course of these negotiations, I hope there will be agreement to increase IDA resources substantially in real terms to help meet the needs of the poorest countries described in the 1978 first World Development Report.

I look forward to your support in the forthcoming negotiations.

Dear Governor:

At the recent Annual Meeting in Washington, I mentioned that we wish to start negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of the International Development Association (IDA) before the end of the year. This is because IDA will have fully used its existing commitment authority under the Fifth Replenishment by the end of June 1980. Before then not only is there a need to reach an executive agreement on the next replenishment but also time has to be allowed for legislative ratification among governments. It is therefore proposed to hold the first meeting of IDA Deputies at our Paris Office on December 11 and 12 of this year. For this purpose, I am writing to ask if you would be good enough to appoint a Deputy to represent your Government in the IDA 6 Replenishment discussions and to attend the first meeting in Paris. I am sending a similar request to all countries that contributed to the Fifth Replenishment. At the same time, my senior associates and I have started to approach possible new donors to IDA in order to make our best efforts to widen the circle of contributors.

During the course of these negotiations, I hope there will be agreement to increase IDA resources substantially in real terms to help meet the needs of the poorest countries described in the 1978 first World Development Report.

I look forward to your support in the forthcoming negotiations.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Minister:

It was with pleasure and gratitude that I learned upon my return from a mission overseas of your prompt response indicating that your Ministry will be represented in the first meeting of the Deputies on December 11 and 12 of this year at the Bank's office in Paris to discuss the Sixth Replenishment of the International Development Association (IDA).

The reason for having to start negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment soon is that — although the funds provided in the Fifth Replenishment will not have been fully committed until June 1980 — the long lead time required to reach a negotiated agreement, and to secure legislative approval, makes it essential that the negotiating process begin soon.

All the countries that contributed to the Fifth Replenishment have been similarly invited to send their Deputies. At the same time, my senior associates and I have started to approach possible new donors to IDA in order to make our best efforts to widen the circle of contributors.

As I mentioned in my concluding remarks during the latest Annual Meetings, there has been widespread acceptance of the twin goals of development — the acceleration of economic growth, and the attack on absolute poverty — and general agreement that they should serve as the foundation both for the operational plans of the developing countries themselves and for the efforts of those, including the Bank, who are seeking to assist them.

Similarly, there has been general agreement on the fact that the negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of IDA should have the objective of achieving a substantial increase in IDA's resources in real terms.
Of course, I do not need to emphasize to you the crucial importance of this issue and Saudi Arabia's important role therein. Because of the Kingdom's stature and the important position it occupies in the world community, its role always has a multiplying effect. I am confident that it will play it in the full.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Minister:

You will recall that during our recent meeting in Washington, one of the important subjects we discussed was the need to start negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of the International Development Association (IDA) before the end of this year. The reason for this timing is that — although the funds provided in the Fifth Replenishment will not be fully committed until June 1980 — the long lead time required to reach a negotiated agreement, and to secure legislative approval, makes it essential that the negotiating process begin soon. It is therefore proposed to hold the first meeting of IDA Deputies at the Bank’s Paris office on December 11 and 12 of this year. For this purpose, I am writing to ask if you would kindly appoint a Deputy to represent your Government in the IDA 6 Replenishment discussions and to attend the first meeting in Paris.

As I mentioned in my concluding remarks during the latest Annual Meetings, it has become clear from the deliberations of the Governors that a broad consensus has emerged on a number of fundamental issues. There has been widespread acceptance of the twin goals of development — the acceleration of economic growth, and the attack on absolute poverty — and general agreement that they should serve as the foundation both for the operational plans of the developing countries themselves and for the efforts of those, including the Bank, who are seeking to assist them.

Similarly, there has been general agreement on the fact that the negotiations for the Sixth Replenishment of IDA should have the objective of achieving a substantial increase in IDA’s resources in real terms.

Of course, I do not need to emphasize to you the crucial importance of this issue and I am confident that Kuwait will continue to play its traditional enlightened and leading role in the forthcoming negotiations.

Sincerely,

Your Highness:

I have written to His Excellency the Governor of the Bank for Kuwait, Minister Abdul Rahman Salim Al Ateegy, asking him whether he would be good enough to appoint a Deputy to represent Kuwait in the discussions for the Sixth Replenishment of the International Development Association (IDA) (copy attached).

I am writing to you personally because of the strong, keen interest Your Highness takes in the cause of economic development aid. This I have clearly sensed during the enjoyable discussions I have had with your Highness on the occasions of my visits to Kuwait. Under your wise and farsighted guidance, Kuwait has played a leading pioneering role among other OPEC countries in the field of economic development aid. This has been demonstrated by both bilateral aid efforts through the Kuwait Fund and multilateral cooperation through several international institutions. Actually, Kuwait has been the first OPEC country to contribute to IDA replenishments since November 1971. All of this leads me to write to you now about the IDA Sixth Replenishment, hoping that, here again, Kuwait will play a leading role.

Sincerely,

Dear Maury:

Thank you for your letter of September 5 regarding the follow up to the meeting of the World Food Council.

I understand that Mr. Stern has been in touch with you about our readiness to take the lead in fulfilling the recommendation that the Bank initiate a meeting of international agencies to discuss obstacles to increasing investment in food production in developing countries. At present we are considering the most effective way of organizing such a meeting.

Montague Yudelman, Director of our Agriculture and Rural Development Department, will be meeting with you on the 29th in Rome. I presume you will discuss further action when you meet.

Sincerely,

Dear Harold:

A few weeks ago Mac Mathias sent me a note in which he said:

"Phil Merrill, the publisher of several Maryland newspapers, has come to me with an unusual problem. It occurs to me that you once faced the same problem and might be willing to give him some advice.

"At a very early age he has achieved considerable material success and is now looking for new challenges. Your knowledge of the world might lead you to suggest some developing area in which he could apply both his personal talents and his financial resources."

Subsequently, I met with Merrill and found him one of the most impressive entrepreneurs and administrators I have talked with in many years. Approximately 44 years old, he has made a fortune and is anxious to participate in government in a position which can make use of his management competence. As you can see from the brief biographical sketch attached, he is a graduate of the Harvard Business School, and has worked both in the White House and State Department. Whether he could be of use to you I don't know, but either you or one of your associates might wish to interview him.

With best wishes,

Robert S. McNamara

Prime Minister and

Ministry of Finance
Port-of-Spain, Trinidad and Tobago

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

I am pleased to acknowledge receipt of your letter of August 3, 1978, which highlights your personal concern for the further development of Trinidad and Tobago's education sector. The reports and documents appended to your letter indicate the strong commitment of the various agencies in Trinidad to address the issues of educational development on a priority basis.

For our part, as Mr. Thant has personally indicated to you, we look forward to further collaboration with your Government in developing a third education project. A project preparation mission under the Bank/UNESCO Cooperative Program is scheduled to visit Trinidad from September 11 to 30, 1978 to assist the Planning Unit in the Ministry of Education in preparing this project. Later, in November/December 1978, a project appraisal mission from the Bank is scheduled to visit Trinidad.

As you have emphasized in your letter, efficient project implementation requires special attention to project implementation machinery. In Bank-financed projects, we have included the provision of such arrangements wherever the need exists. In the preparation and appraisal of the third education project, we will pay particular attention to the project implementation requirements.

We share your Government's view that the rehabilitation of primary education, which lies at the foundation of the entire educational system, should receive the serious consideration which it deserves. In this respect, we have noted with particular interest the proposed establishment of the primary school construction and equipment fund and the proposed new arrangements under which the Government will assume full responsibility for the rebuilding and renovation of denominational schools.

With regard to the provision of technical expertise to assist the Commission of Enquiry on the safety and reliability of schools built by a particular contracting firm under the second education project, we will be glad to arrange for such expertise as may be required.
We welcome the proposed visit to the Bank of the Education Minister, Dr. Joseph, and Minister Padmore to discuss further the issues which you have raised in your letter. We look forward to having fruitful discussions with them.

With assurances of my highest consideration, Mr. Prime Minister, I remain,

Sincerely,

(Signed) Robert S. McNamara

Dear Mr. Minister:

I am pleased to respond to your letter of August 15, 1978, drawing our attention to the role Workers Banks in Latin America and the Caribbean can play in assisting productive enterprise in urban areas. We are increasing our own lending for this purpose, particularly through site specific urban development projects and through national scale projects aimed at assisting labor-intensive small and medium industries.

In lending for small industries, we channel financing through a wide range of intermediary finance institutions. In a number of countries, we also lend to a central entity such as a Central Bank for relending to a second tier of financial institutions, mostly commercial banks including Workers Banks, which are accessible to the small entrepreneur. Such Workers Banks are eligible to participate in operations which we have recently undertaken in Mexico and Jamaica. We are now considering an operation in Honduras in which we expect the Workers Bank of Honduras could be eligible to participate.

In expanding our lending to assist small urban industries and similar entrepreneurial activities, we are making special efforts to use non-conventional financial intermediaries. We are following closely the development of Workers Banks and are in contact with them. Last year we participated in their regional conference, which was held in Jamaica, and we intend to do so again on the occasion of the forthcoming Workers Banks Conference to be convened in Washington in October 1978.

I wish to thank you for your thoughtful suggestions and assure you that we shall take them into account in the course of our efforts to find effective ways to alleviate the problems of urban poverty in the developing countries.

With kind regards,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. McBride:

Over the past year a number of critics have accused the World Bank of undermining the American steel industry, in spite of clear evidence to the contrary.

I was therefore especially pleased to note that the United Steelworkers of America opposed ill-founded attempts to impose damaging restrictions on U.S. participation in the World Bank while the House of Representatives was considering HR 12931, the FY 1979 foreign aid appropriations bill.

I wish to extend my appreciation to Mr. Jack Sheehan of your Washington office who testified so thoughtfully before the House Appropriations Committee earlier this year.

Excellency:

Your letter of August 8 reached the World Bank on August 21, after I had left Washington for a holiday from which I have only now returned.

I am sorry to say that I shall again be unable to accept your invitation to address the Committee of the Whole. The timing of the Committee's current session comes immediately after my absence from the Bank, coincident with a recess of the Executive Directors and the consequent accumulation of work. This, together with the imminence of the Annual Meeting of the Bank, makes it impracticable for me to contemplate even a brief time away from the Bank in these next few weeks and will preclude my devoting the time I would wish to give to preparation of a statement to the Committee.

I appreciate your invitation and hope you will understand why I must reply as I have done. I am sending a copy of this letter to Mr. Cordovez, in accordance with the suggestion in your letter.

Sincerely,
