Dear Mr. Eklund:

On behalf of Mr. McNamara, I acknowledge receipt of your letter (Ref: SC/590-3) of June 26, 1972 inviting the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development to attend the meeting of the panel of experts on the peaceful uses of nuclear explosions which will take place in Vienna on November 27, 1972.

I regret to have to inform you that the Bank will not be in a position to be represented at this meeting. We would, however, be much obliged if documents particularly on items III (i) and (ii) of the draft agenda, issued before or as a result of the panel's session, could be sent to the attention of Mr. Frederick H. Howell, Deputy Director, Public Utilities Projects Department, at this address.

Yours sincerely,

Sir,

I have the honour to attach a copy of the notification of the Symposium on Fuel and Fuel Elements for Fast Reactors, being convened by the International Atomic Energy Agency in Brussels from 2 to 6 July 1973. This notification is being sent to the Agency Member States.

I have pleasure in inviting your organization to be represented at the meeting and should be grateful if you would let me know whether this will be possible. If so, I should appreciate it if you would also indicate, in due course, the name of the person or persons designated by you to attend.

Accept, Sir, the assurances of my highest consideration.

From various magazines and newspapers I have come to know that you and the World Bank want to help emerging countries in every possible way, and I believe that you and the World Bank will take keen interest in a project I have thought of as part of Ghana's total development.

I am Ghanaian and have been a permanent resident in this country for six years. Since I arrived here in 1966 to continue my education I have never thought of remaining in this country, thus contributing towards combaing the "brain drain" problem. This is not to say that there is nothing in this country which entices me. Far from it. What I am saying is that my country, being a developing country, needs me more than this country.

I have just earned a doctoral degree and have, for the meantime, taken a full-time job. Even though, in this country, there are great prospects for me, my desire to go home still grows. For this reason I paid a visit to my country last July to explore how I could fit my knowledge and experiences into the developmental planning going on there. The observation I made led me into thinking about a project whose skeleton plan is here attached.

The project, as you could imagine, needs outside support - in cash, grant and/or loan as well as in kind. I am optimistic as far as the total success of the project is concerned, and I cherish the hope that its contribution to the overall development of Ghana will be significant. It may be said that the most intriguing parts of the project are (1) the idea of a chemopit center to explore the possibility for Ghana to produce non-edible commodities from farm crops and by-products: for example, my doctoral research shows that Ghana can make her own soap from cocoa pods and plantains peels which, unfortunately, find their way to the dump, and (2) to make the Green Revolution an on-going business (not ad hoc) and the basis for an integrated development in Ghana.

I would appreciate it very much if you and the World Bank could offer some support to any aspect of the project. Maybe, in addition to any help you have in mind, you may inform me of other possible resources.

Sincerely yours,

Rev. Dr. John F. Edwin, Jr.

Dear Bob:

October 17, 1972

Thank you for taking the time out of your busy schedule this morning to visit with me about our program for the International Federation of Associations of Business Economists.

I am writing you about another subject that I hope will be of interest to you and your associates. As you know, your Dr. S. R. Sen is President of the International Association of Agricultural Economists this year. At a recent meeting with Dr. Sen and others interested in this important activity I was asked to obtain your support for travel funds to bring worthy participants to the International Conference which will be held next year in Sao Paulo, Brazil, August 20-29.

I am enclosing a leaflet which gives in capsule form the history and the purpose of this group. Also attached is an official request which details the reasons why travel help is needed.

We are particularly anxious to obtain travel funds for this Conference since the cost of transportation to Brazil will seriously strain the limited budgets of agricultural economists in most of the countries, but especially in the developing countries. Without help it will be impossible for them to attend, but with the help of a little seed money it will be possible to obtain additional support from within their own countries. Grants as small as $100 will be welcomed and those in multiples of $500 can each be identified as a World Bank Travel Fellowship.
With few exceptions, the countries of the world have a dire need for the information and assistance that agricultural economists can give them. This will be the fifteenth such conference held since the Association was founded in 1929. The conferences provide the outstanding economists from each country with the opportunity to broaden their field of knowledge and to meet with their colleagues from all over the world to exchange information and opinions on problems of mutual interest and concern.

Bob, I am sure that Dr. Sen would be glad to give you any additional information that you might want about the Association. We appreciate the cooperation you have already given us in making Dr. Sen available — but, in addition, we hope you can join us in support of the travel fund grants which we believe will contribute to fostering the constructive efforts of the World Bank as well as the International Conference of Agricultural Economists.

The next time I am in Washington will give your office a ring and will try to take advantage of your good invitation to join you for lunch.

Cordially,

Robert J. Eggert

Dear Mr. Elshafei:

Your letter of June 16 gave a good description of the sort of problem that confronts investment planners in electric power generation. One of my colleagues here, Mr. Dennis Anderson, has done some pioneering work in this field and knows it much better than I. He happens to be on a Bank mission to Turkey right now, and when he returns, I shall be away. However, I shall leave your letter for him, and I hope he will be able to send you a working paper or other material that will be useful to you.

Regarding your question whether the duties of a research assistant would distract you from your studies in a university, there is no general answer. In many cases it would interfere with the studies, especially if the job were unrelated to the content of the studies. Sometimes, however, a student has the good fortune to work at a job that actually helps him with what he wants to learn, or provides him with material he can use in a thesis. This depends so much on the specific situation and individual person, that I cannot tell you what you should do. One alternative to consider, however, would be to do without a job for at least one semester if your father will finance you, and during that semester discuss the possibilities with your faculty members for the second semester or second year.

Wishing you the best of opportunities, I am

Sincerely yours,

Dear Charles:

It was good to have your note, and I trust that by now you have the Bank's Annual Report. With this reply, I'm sending a copy of Mr. McNamara's recent talk to the World Bank Governors. And by separate mail, I'm sending a book about sector programs and policies; while there is a lot about the Bank in it, it also contains some essay material and some statistics that may interest you.

Needless to say, I would be delighted if the Bank provided some funds for Poverty 2000, after all. Do let me know if there is any chance that the possibility might bring you to Washington.

Sincerely yours,

Harold Graves

Dear Harold,

Funny how things turn full circle, isn't it? Now, twelve months after the first approach, the Bank has asked us for up-to-date material on Poverty 2000 and is reconsidering the case for funding ... This time I will wait patiently to see what the machine churns out.

I see from a letter of Dick Fagley's that the World Bank/IDA Annual Report is out and wondered if you could possibly persuade someone there to send me a copy. I'd be very grateful.

I hope things go well with you. All good wishes,

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr. Minister,

I was very pleased to have your letter of May 31, 1972, which referred to your Government’s plans for the study of agricultural development and included a request for Bank assistance in this respect. I am pleased to respond that we would be prepared to send an agricultural sector survey mission in September, 1972, if this is an appropriate time, to look at the requirements for an effective agricultural development program, generally and with special reference to the agro-industrial components of such a program. In order to begin the preparation for this sector mission, we would like to send two representatives from our Agriculture Projects Department to Cairo during the last week in June to meet with you, other staff of your ministry and other agencies concerned with agriculture. At that time final arrangements could be concluded for the mission in September, as well as a start made toward the assembly of data necessary for the study itself.

We look forward to this opportunity to work closely together with you on problems of agricultural development in Egypt, and I hope that the timing outlined above will prove convenient from your standpoint.

Sincerely,

(Signed) Robert S. McNamara

Dear Mr. McNamara,

We are very grateful to your organization for assigning both Mr. Brown and Mr. Owen to Egypt as short term consultants to study the existing agricultural conditions including labor problems in Egypt. We have had very fruitful discussion with them in different aspects of our agricultural development and we are looking forward to receiving a copy of their report.

In the meantime we are presently engaged in making a comprehensive study for possible agricultural development. This socio-economic study is being made in areas representing three different setups of our agricultural conditions, namely, agricultural reform land reclamation and old areas. We would appreciate very much your positive response to a government request for a sector analysis of the total area of agricultural industries development, including comprehensive market analysis and identification of agricultural production related to industry that might be developed in rural areas, the possibilities in rural located agro-industries, including the types of reorganization of the existing farming and cooperative systems.

We would therefore ask your very kind assistance to send a team of consultant to go over all aspects of this question in order to facilitate the implementation of our new agricultural policy.

We are looking forward to receive a positive answer.

With our best wishes and regards.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. McMahonara,

I am in receipt of your letter in which you intimated that you will not be able to pay a visit to Egypt during this year due to your heavy travel schedule.

I will be most delighted to see you once again in Egypt next year in order to refresh your acquaintance with the IBRD assisted projects in Egypt.

Mr. R. S. MacNamara, Pres.
World Bank
1818 H Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. MacNamara:

I would like to call to your attention my observations of how World Bank projects are being assembled in many of the countries I have visited. In April-May I visited eight countries. In each country I visited the Ministry of Education, among many other training agencies.

As president and founder of our company, I visit each country to personally determine what types of programs are taking place. In many I offer seminars in Career Preparation.

Now, as to my observation. In almost all countries the order of effort is as follows:

1. Arrival of experts.
2. Preparation of shopping lists of materials.
3. Teacher Training.

The order of activities is 180 degrees out of phase.

Results: Turkey - Less than 5% of suggested list will fit their curriculum.

Taiwan - One major U.S. supplier's catalog is used for listing hand tools, etc. with no definition of curriculum, behavioral objectives, or listing of employment opportunities.

South Korea - A tremendous list of materials is available, but practically no curriculum.

I could list country after country where this process is taking place. I have spoken to in-country experts (U.S.) and they tell me they have a schedule to meet and since curriculum takes the longest to prepare, it is done last. Without curriculum and objectives you do not know what materials one really needs. It is like ordering lumber and then looking for a blue print.

You might want to look into the above procedures further.

A few comments as to what we do - representing the private sector:

In each country (we work currently in 52) we provide curriculum (at no charge) for each project. The curriculum is based on employment opportunities available.

Behavioral objectives, course outlines, teachers' guides, and student tests are all provided.

All required equipment to implement the program is recommended in a proposal. (Our pricing is competitive world wide.)

If the country accepts the offer, the teacher is sent to our teacher training center in Baltimore for 4-6 weeks of comprehensive training. The course is accredited by Murry State University (Kentucky) and Stout State University. University credits are issued from the desired institution. If the order exceeds $35,000, EA pays all travel, living and training expenses. Over 1,100 teachers from the U.S. and 24 countries have been trained during the past ten years.

Heavy emphasis is placed on making experts from the host country. We use our own people for short durations (in-country) during start-up if requested.

We will start with an empty building or no building at all. We provide laboratory drawings where necessary - no charge. The institution pays only for its equipment.

For year in and year out follow up, we maintain a factory trained representative who works with the school people. It is to our advantage to make each program very successful.

For your review I am sending some typical curriculum materials for study by your staff.

In Taiwan the bank has six experts (estimated cost $180,000 per year). We could completely equip in electricity-electronics four schools for just their cost alone. The entire project would be completely installed and teachers trained within four months (assuming the building exists).

In the event you would like to explore further my observations during the past ten years, I could make time available.

Sincerely yours,
ELECTRONIC AIDS

Dear Mr. Elder:

I am pleased to acknowledge your letter of March 27, 1972 to Mr. Benjenk expressing your interest in working for the Bank and enclosing your curriculum vitae. The Bank is interested in hearing from those who like yourself have had extensive experience in international affairs. Your letter has been forwarded to the Bank’s Personnel Department for consideration and reply, and you should be hearing from them in due course.

Yours sincerely,

David Richardson

Dear Mr. McNamara,

I am in receipt of your letter in which you intimated that you will not be able to pay a visit to Egypt during this year due to your heavy travel schedule.

I will be most delighted to see you once again in Egypt next year in order to refresh your acquaintance with the IBRD assisted projects in Egypt.

With my kindest and best personal regards.

Yours Sincerely

Dear Mr. Minister:

I should like to thank you for your letter of February 2 in which you confirmed the invitation to visit Egypt which Mr. Macei had extended to me. It was also very kind of you to find such appreciative words about my first visit to Egypt in 1963. I am glad you feel that this visit has contributed to making possible increased assistance by the World Bank Group.

As I wrote Mr. Macei already, my travel schedule this year is unfortunately so heavy that I cannot at this time contemplate another visit to Egypt. May I plan to do so in a future year?

With best personal regards,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Shields:

Many thanks from me and Mr. Gilshon (from the Bank of Israel) for the attention you accorded me in Washington.

I am sorry to inform you that the personnel officer of the IBRD Mrs. Francesca G. Stone informed in a letter from 17 December, 1971 that "my qualifications and experience do not meet the specific needs (of the IBRD) as closely as those of other persons under consideration".

From our short conversation in Washington I got the impression that your opinion about my professional qualifications was different, and therefore I was surprised by this letter which was written only few days after our meeting.

I shall be grateful if you could find out and clarify the reason for refusing my application without even interviewing me or inquiring seriously about my qualifications with people who are ready to recommend me.

I want to believe that Mrs. Stone's letter was sent by some mistake, but if her decision is definite, please let me know.

I thank you again for everything,

Yours sincerely,

Eliahou Hasson
